Excerpt from Address of the Trustees of the University of Maryland, Concerning the Medical Department of the Institution: With an Appendix, Containing the Regulations for Admission and Graduation; The Subjects Taught by Each Professor, Mode of Instruction, C., C Attached to the school, indeed within the medical college, are excellent Rooms for the prosecution of practical anatomy, under the guidance of the Demonstrator. A valuable museum contains an extensive collection of specimens of healthy and morbid anatomy; the basis of which was the copious collection of Mr. Allan Burns, which was purchased from Professor Granville Sharp Pattison. To this, numerous additions have been annually made, and, of late, important preparations have been procured from France and Italy. It is well adapted for elucidating the lectures on various departments of medicine. The chemical and philosophical apparatus is extensive, and well arranged, comprising every thing requisite for a complete illustration of the principles of Physical Science. The collection of Surgical and Obstetrical apparatus is ample; whilst materia medica is elucidated by well selected specimens. Wherever, indeed, the eye can be addressed as well as the reaction, this course is pursued, and accordingly illustrations on the black-board form useful adjuncts in some of the departments.
