LANDER (SPACECRAFT)

Alphascript Publishing. Taschenbuch. Condition: Neu. Neuware - A lander is a spacecraft which descends toward and comes to rest on the surface of an astronomical body. For bodies with atmospheres, the landing is called atmospheric reentry and the lander descends as a re-entry vehicle. In these cases landers may employ aerobraking and parachutes to slow down, often with small landing rockets which fire just before impact to bring the lander to rest relatively gently. The Mars Pathfinder mission also used inflatable airbags to cushion the lander's impact. When a high velocity impact is planned, the spacecraft is called an impactor. Several terrestrial bodies have been subject of lander and/or impact exploration: among them the planets Mars and Venus and the Saturn moon Titan. Of the inner Solar System planets, Mercury is the only one yet to be visited by a lander. 204 pp. Englisch.
