By United States Department of Agriculture

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Excerpt from Special Margins and Costs Studies The total food marketing bill rose from 9 billion dollars in 1940 to 34 billion dollars in 1956. -this uninterrupted annual increase can be accounted for largely in terms of (1) the larger volume of food required to feed 38 million more people; (2) a persistent rise in the prices of all services and materials; and (3) an increase in the built-in services sold with food. Although retail food prices have remained fairly stable during the last two years, there is a growing concern about the rise in marketing costs, the net effect of which is to lower prices to farmers. We find, therefore, that farmers and consumers are asking whether prevailing processing and marketing charges are a realistic reflection of the costs of performing the numerous services needed to move products from the farm to the consumer. Because of this deep - rooted interest in the cost of food, Congress in 1955 directed the Department of Agriculture to make a number of special studies of the margin or spread between prices farmers receive and...
